

TOMBS EMPLOYEES ACT AS 'STEERERS,' JEROME DECLARES

Judge Rosalsky to Head a Crusade Against the Practice.

The Judges of General Sessions and District-Attorney Jerome have begun a crusade to put a stop to the practice of those employed in and about the Tombs Prison in "steering" for lawyers.

A specific charge against a Deputy Sheriff is under investigation at the present time. This official is accused of distributing a certain lawyer's cards to the prisoners in the Tombs with the instructions to employ him.

When Lillian Pichler, a saleswoman of No. 329 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, who had been arrested for larceny, was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in Part I. of General Sessions, she entered a plea of not guilty, contrary to the one expected, as she had pleaded guilty when first arrested and arraigned in the police court. Father Evers, the Roman Catholic chaplain of the Tombs, was in court waiting to ask Judge Rosalsky to suspend sentence on the woman on her plea that she would be honest in the future, and expressed his surprise at her change.

Father Evers told Judge Rosalsky, and the latter interrogated the woman. She said that while coming across the "Bridge of Sighs" to court this morning Deputy Sheriff Charles Rader had approached her, handed her the card of a lawyer and told her to plead not guilty.

Judge Rosalsky immediately sent for the Deputy Sheriff and District-Attorney Jerome interrogated him. He admitted handing the woman the lawyer's card, but said that the woman had requested him to recommend a lawyer. He denied he "stood in" with the lawyer or had accepted any presents from him. District-Attorney Jerome told the court that there was no doubt in his mind "graft" was distributed by lawyers to those employed around the Tombs Prison for steering cases to them, but he did not see how the law could reach them, inasmuch as the lawyers would deny any such transactions. Mr. Jerome said that he knew of instances where lawyers, in order to obtain big fees, had alleged the money had been used to fix not only those in the District-Attorney's office, but even the Judges of the different courts.

Mr. Jerome suggested that no lawyer be allowed to see a prisoner in the Tombs until he first goes to court and records his name as counsel for the prisoner. This would stop the practice of extortion, Mr. Jerome said. At the suggestion of the District-Attorney Judge Rosalsky ordered a transcript of the girl's statement sent to Sheriff Foley for his action. "I have given this matter a great deal of attention," Judge Rosalsky told the District-Attorney, "and I will recommend to my associates on the bench the wisdom of putting a stop to the disgraceful practice by adopting rules tending to blot out the flagrant abuses."

After listening to Mr. Jerome the woman withdrew her plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the indictment. She was remanded to the Tombs until Monday for sentence.

SALVATION ARMY LASSIES' FEES $2.25 PER DAY

Gen. James W. Duffin Tells More About the Methods of His Organization.

Gen. James William Duffin was today recalled to the stand in the trial before Justice O'Gorman in the Supreme Court of the suit over the right to use the name "Salvation Army." He was asked on redirect examination to tell about the method and practices of his "American Salvation Army."

He said a man named Hammond visited his headquarters in Philadelphia, and said he was interested in the new army and came for a friend who had a dollar to give.

"I was glad to give him the ritual and other literature showing the difference between the two armies," said the witness. "Afterward I learned that he was an officer in the Salvation Army, sent to get information on which to base this suit. I did not know that the Booth army was incorporated in New York in 1888, when I incorporated my army in Philadelphia in 1900. I did know that it was contrary to the policy of General Booth to incorporate."

"Our army permits no officer to contract a debt legally or morally. If one does, he is expelled. "Our work in Philadelphia includes Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners to the poor, and a lodging-house, outings for crippled children, and the like. We lodge from 5,000 to 6,000 poor people every year. We distribute lodging-house tickets among the park policemen to distribute to waifs on the benches."

Make $2.25 a Day. "My salary is $25 a week. It comes out of 10 per cent. of all collections sent from branches to headquarters, which now amount to $60 or $70 a week. It pays all the expenses at headquarters. The women who collect about saloons and the like are mostly widows or wives who have been deserted. They average $1.75 to $2.25 commissions per day. "We do not attack the Booth Army, for it is our policy to co-operate with it in uplifting the poor."

Major Marion Smalley, a handsome woman of statuesque figure, and a soft, pleasant voice, followed Gen. Duffin on the stand. She wore a blue Quaker bonnet.

"I am in charge of the American Salvation Army Home for friendless women and children in Washington," she said. "We are sheltering thirty dependent women at present, and our work is supported by voluntary contribution of many persons prominent in the social life of the capital. These contributions are so liberal that I am enabled to make distribution of food in buckets and needed clothing three times a week to the poor."

She Knows Williams. "Do you know S. B. Williams?" was asked. The statuesque major said calmly, "I do," and when asked, pointed him out—a fine looking young man in the uniform of a captain of the Booth Salvation Army.

"He was a staff captain in the American Salvation Army down to last January, and is with our friend, making occasional visits to our Washington Headquarters," she said.

"Did he ever take a girl there?" "He did. About a year ago he brought a young girl to the Home, saying that she was about to become a mother. He said she was the daughter of a Methodist minister and that he had first met her in a police court, charged with larceny. I kept her in the Home until it was necessary to send her to a maternity hospital."

"Her baby did not live long and she returned to the Home. She was inclined to remain out here, and that is against our rules. She then entered the Gospel Home at Washington, and not long afterward was again arrested as a thief."

Lilly Duffin, wife of the General, came next to the stand. "Have you a military title?" she was asked. "Why, yes, I am 'Mrs Gen. Duffin,'" she replied. She said she had been married to the General twenty years and a member of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and at first sold the "War Cry," a newspaper title first used by her husband.

TRACTION LINES SCORE POINT IN TRANSFER WAR

The Appellate Division, First Department, today denied the motion of the Public Service Commission to quash the writ of certiorari obtained to review the action of the Commission ordering the return of transfers on the line of the Fifty-ninth Street Crosstown Railroad.

The case will now come before the Appellate Division for review of the action of the Commission, which ordered transfers to be restored on the line on Dec. 8, under a penalty of $5.00 for each day the order was not obeyed. The writ of certiorari was obtained by the receivers of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, Adrian H. Joline, and Douglas Robinson, who refused to accept the offer of the Fifty-ninth street line for an interchange of the transfer system.

The Price Is the Same.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap sells for no more than ordinary naphtha soap.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the best naphtha soap; and, because it is best, you should use it.

But if, in a year or two or three, some other manufacturer comes along and makes a better soap, you should use his.

It does not seem possible to produce a better naphtha soap than "P. & G."

The materials of which it is made are very much better than those used in ordinary naphtha soap.

"P. & G." contains no rosin. Most naphtha soaps do. Rosin is cheap. That is why it is used in preference to materials that cost more and do better work.

"P. & G." contains coconut oil. No other naphtha soap does. Coconut oil is the highest grade material used in making laundry soap.

But—and this is important—the price of P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the same as that of ordinary naphtha soap. The materials are very much better. But the price is the same—5 cents a cake.

At all grocers—try it.
